

Ten (or more!) reasons to register your software with the Astrophysics Source Code Library ascl.net ♦ Free online registry of codes used in astronomy research ♦ Making codes discoverable since 1999

Shows confidence in your research

It's free

Citations to ASCL entries are trackable by ADS

Makes your code citable on its own merit

Indexed by ADS and Web of Science

Easy submissions form

Allows others to find your code easily

Citations by ASCL ID accepted by over 250 journals including all major astro journals

Largest curated indexed resource for astronomy research codes in existence, with 3,500+ codes

Makes astronomy research more falsifiable, transparent, reproducible... better!

Associated links from ADS entries for papers to ASCL entries

Get a unique identifier: an ASCL ID

Alice Allen ♦ aallen@ascl.net ♦ University of Maryland College Park ♦ ASCL

The ASCL is supported by

Heidelberg Institute for Theoretical Studies

Michigan Tech